Questions

What people ask before they start

Something not covered here? Ask us directly and an engineer will answer.

Ask a question (https://codetrappers.com/contact/)

A rebuild replaces the site and the way your team works with it. A facelift keeps the build, the content and the admin your editors know, and changes the design, the templates and the speed. It is the right choice when the site works and looks dated, and the wrong one when the foundation is the problem.

No, and that is usually the reason people choose this. The same admin, the same content, the same workflow, with the front end brought up to date around it.

URLs, titles, meta descriptions and structured data carry across, we take a baseline of the pages that matter before starting, and we compare after launch rather than assuming. Design changes should not cost you rankings, and when they do it is usually because nobody measured.
